STATOTHR !

I am a student at Harvard University and have been very interested in learning about Russia. I have gained enormous compassion for the Russian people, and a great hatred for the oppressive Soviet regime which claims to speak for them. I felt the deepest admiration for your brave stand against this tyranny, defending the rights of your countrymen before the world.

I have a lot of Russian friends in this country, many of whom belong to the NTS solidarist movement. They have told me much about the true character of Russia - the compassion and courage of her people, the greatness of her past, the noble tasks which the future holds for her. I would like to learn so much more.

The words you spoke have excited new enthusiasm in me. A new hope, a new faith in the goodness of man. This means so much in these dangerous, troubled times.

I would like to correspond with you, sir. Perhaps I could tell you things about America, and you could tell me about conditions in the USSR and your hopes for Russia's future.

I would be honored to have you stay at my home, if you ever come to Boston.

Your sincere friend,
